Perspectives for 2010

An Astrological Evening with Rio Olesky

The New Year begins with economic storm clouds continuing to hover. Unemployment and foreclosures are daily news. International terrorism renders diplomacy futile. Environmental destruction threatens long-term human survival. Amidst all the dark clouds, where are the silver linings? The major planetary transits clearly reflect the difficulties we are facing. The question is: how can these same energies be used to create opportunities for economic revival and political innovation? How can these transits be used to enable us to expand our consciousness in ways that enable us to surf these turbulent times and transcend them with new behaviors?

The focus of this talk will be on the transits that are providing both the challenges and the ways out:

- Saturn in Libra
- Uranus transiting into Aries
- Jupiter transiting into Pisces
- The Saturn-Pluto square
- The continuation of the Saturn-Uranus opposition
- The T-square involving Saturn, Uranus and Pluto
- We will also discuss how these are reflected in the charts of the United States and President Barack Obama

Join Rio as he delineates these and other important astrological influences for the coming year. The focus will be on learning how to work with them in order to develop a personal sense of well-being as well as how to work collectively to make a difference in humanity's future.
